Verde Alfieri - Biography

Born in Venice – Italy – in 1969, daughter of the well-known art publisher Bruno Alfieri (in 1948 he published the first catalog of the Peggy Guggenheim collection in Venice and in 1950, for the 25th Biennale, he organized the first Jackson Pollock solo exhibition at the Ala Napoleonica in Piazza S. Marco), Verde lives and works in Milan where she moved in 1982. After graphic design studies, since 1990 she has mainly dealt with graphics and communication working for various publisher and well-known Italian companies and since 1996 for the family publishing company.

Fond of contemporary art and with a rich background discovering digital art, Verde finally approached studio jewellery in 2013 experimenting her artworks to wear thus introducing a more physical and material aspect to the experience gained over the years.

In 2014 Verde creates her first collection of contemporary jewellery, using ropes and brass wires, and in 2015 the first collection of paper jewellery where small and precious wearable pieces of art with a strong plastic dimension are made with the incredible use of a simple material as paper is, but with a great potential.

Verde combines precious papers or recycled papers in elements that pass through the blending of influences and styles that are perceived as her full inspiration. Modernity and uniqueness are embodied in jewels with incredible shapes and colors that recall Africa, the Middle East, Latin America but also the Italian territories, where jewellery has deep roots in great artistic traditions.

Paper jewellery care

The artisanal craftsmanship and any small imperfections make each piece of jewelry unique and valuable, enhancing its artistic worth.

The natural matte finish and soft texture of the paper used to create jewelry is preserved through the application of a protective spray lacquer.

The small size of the paper elements used in each piece, along with the quantity, ensures that moisture, sweat, or occasional water droplets are not absorbed for long and quickly evaporate.

Here are the essential rules for caring paper jewelry:

- remove the paper jewelry before showering or washing hands.*
- avoid wearing paper jewelry in environments with a lot of water, such as the sea, swimming pools, boats, etc.*
- allow creams, cosmetics, and perfumes to dry completely before wearing your jewelry.*
- when not in use, store your jewelry in its case or fabric pouch.*
